

Clean All the Preinstalled Junk Off Your Computer

Now that you've installed security software to protect your new PC from invasion, it's time to clean all the preinstalled junk off your computer. Most store-bought PCs come chock-full of bloatware intended to make extra money for the PC makers, and you probably don't need (or want) most of it clogging up your system resources.

That's where PC Decrapifier comes in. This pint-size wonder program scans your PC, brings up a checklist of the bloatware installed on your machine, and helps you wipe them all away in one fell swoop. A secondary screen lists all of your programs if you want to nuke even more. Ignore it, or just be careful to avoid erasing something important.