

Windows powerful (but rarely used) search tools

Most people search inside Windows by using the Search Bar that is a component of the Taskbar. But for more granular results, try the search box in the upper-right corner of Windows Explorer.

The advanced search tools let you add fancy filters, from date and file type to Boolean operands. This Microsoft page offers a full list of such commands in the Search Tools section of the File Explorer's Ribbon.